

Tragically, most people will miss Heaven by 18", the distance between their head and their heart. With their head they have heard and know everything necessary to be saved but with the heart, they fail to call upon the Lord and they're lost.

When the Bible talks about faith, it is not a belief in facts, but a "transferral of trust." Every religion has built within it the idea that if you do certain things the deity will accept you and give you something. That is the way our world works, in all areas of life and business.

But that is the very idea that the Bible fights against. You cannot do anything by yourself to be accepted by God. So, so faith talked about in the Bible is a transferral of trust, from the things I think I can do to merit inherit eternal life –a transferral of trust from myself and my ability to do something worthy of God's approval –to a putting of my trust in Jesus Christ as the One who has done it all for me. Jesus died on a cross to pay for my sin, and then rose from the dead as a triumphal victory statement over death and sin, something I could not do for myself.
